The image shows a sheet of graph paper with a header section at the top. The header is a horizontal band, approximately 10% of the page's height, with a thin line above it and a thin line below it. The main body of the page is a grid of small squares, approximately 20 columns wide and 30 rows high. There are four circular binder holes punched into the paper: two on the left margin and two on the right margin, positioned roughly at the top and bottom of the grid area.
